Bay zoning panel to consider RV Park

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A proposal to create a new RV Park on Casino Magic Drive is up for review Wednesday by the Bay's Planning and Zoning Commission.

An unrelated request on the agenda seeks to turn a residence on Dunbar St. into a salon featuring massage therapy and hair styling.

A third applicant wants to create two additional lots in the Breeden Place Subdivision off South Beach Blvd.

The RV park proposal comes from Ira Hatchett, general manager of WBSL radio station at 1190 Casino Magic Dr. His proposal calls for using that 3.5-acre tract as the site of "RV Haven," a recreational vehicle campground that would have 30 slots initially, and up to 75 in the future.

Hatchett needs a special exception to the city zoning ordinance to build the park, because the property is zoned C-2 Neighborhood Commercial, a designation that doesn't allow RV park development.

Hatchett said in an interview that the park would be similar in quality to that already existing at Casino Magic.

The new park is not directly related to the casino, however. He cited the "phenomenal growth" of the Gulf Coast, and said the new park reflects a need for more RV accommodations, a development that would benefit Bay St. Louis area businesses.

Under his plan, 30 RV parking slots would be built on concrete pads measuring 10 feet by 20 feet, located on a section of the property to the rear of the existing radios station. A curved limestone driveway would lead to the RV section.

Each slot would have a six-by-20-foot green area. Hookups for water, and electricity would be available on each site, along with wastewater, trash and sewage disposal. Covered picnic tables with barbecue pits, cable satellite television connections also would be available on the tract, Hatchett said.

With underground utilities, the park would feature walking paths and gazebos, and office and security building, showers, a laundry, pay telephones, and fire hydrants said Hatchett. The complex would sit behind a six-foot white ranch style fence along Casino Magic Drive.

"Hancock County is in the middle of the Mississippi boom," said Hatchett. "The casinos and manufacturers that are moving and planning to move to our area make us one of the fastest growth areas in the state."

Hatchett said it's important that Hancock County's businesses compete with adjoining counties to benefit from the boom.

He promised an aggressive

Supers adopt highway growth amendments

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County supervisors have quietly passed amendments to the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance that planners say will promote the orderly growth of the burgeoning Hwy. 603 corridor and unincorporated areas along U.S. Hwy 90.

The County Planning Commission held a public hearing on the amendments May 6, and there was no opposition. The amendments were also endorsed by Hancock County's Chamber of Commerce as part of its Gateway Enhancement Project.

The Chamber unanimously passed a resolution last February asking supervisors to adopt site plan and design guidelines before more commercial development takes place south of Interstate 10 and along Hwy. 603.

It noted that the extension of sewerage lines on both sides of 603 will bring increased demand for commercial development, and the historic, first ever Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance adopted by supervisors in January of 1997 did not include site guidelines for commercial districts.

According to the amendments, the purpose and intent of the site plan review is to "protect the public health, safety and general welfare; to promote orderly growth and development; to insure new development is harmonious with existing development and the environment; and to encourage the objectives of the Comprehensive Plan."

Each applicant for a site plan will be charged a fee of $100 to help defray the cost of processing. And, should the Planning Commission bear additional expense for advertising or to hire professional assistance in the technical review of the plan, the applicant is required to bear the additional expense if the cost exceeds the initial $100 fee.

The amendments adopted by the supervisors, with the recommendation of the Planning Commission, spell out in detail the procedures developers must follow when submitting site plans, and the types of information that the developer must provide the Planning Commission.

Site plan review will be required for all commercial and multifamily (more than 4 units) construction, reconstruction or alteration within the unincorporated areas of Hancock County.

Another amendment specifies that no development permit or certificate of compliance will be issued until final site plan approval has been obtained from the Planning Commission.

The site plan must contain "an accurately scaled plan for

Navy, Stennis funding hiked

BY ED LEPOMA

The Navy, Stennis Space Center and one Stennis manufacturer will benefit from $288.8 billion Defense Authorization budget passed Friday by the U.S. House of Representatives.

U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor of Bay St. Louis, a senior member of the House Armed Services Committee, said Hancock County and many South Mississippi facilities gained funding in the appropriations bill.

Included in the bill is $9.6 million for the Navy Special Forces Small Boat Unit (Seabees), which is located at Stennis. The money will be used to build a small-craft instruction and technical training school. The facility will have housing for students, a dining room, classroom labs, offices and a supply warehouse.

Another $5 million was authorized for Master Crane, a manufacturer based at Stennis. The firm manufactures an aircraft component hoisting system, which is used by the Air National Guard on both fixed and rotary wing aircraft.

Taylor said the defense authorization also includes $123.8 million, which could also impact Stennis.

The appropriation is to continue research and development of the Space-Based Laser Missile Platform. Two of the contractors bidding on the program have expressed an interest in locating at Stennis if they are awarded the contracts, Taylor said.

Ingalls Shipbuilding, Keesler Air Force Base, the Mississippi National Guard, and Seabee Base in Gulfport were also authorized increased funding for various projects in the current appropriations bills.

Harrison Landfill still undecided

BY ED LEPOMA

Harrison County's Solid Waste District may reach a decision as early as next month on where future garbage might be dumped.

The District, chaired by Pass Christian Mayor Billy McDonald, has narrowed the field to three companies it might negotiate with for a new landfill.

Waste Management Inc., which operates Pecan Grove off Menge Ave. in north Harrison County, is still in the running, along with Southern Pines Inc. and Mississippi Waste Inc. Browning-Ferris Industries is no longer being considered, according to McDonald.

The district has proposed buying land for a new landfill in a still-undisclosed site in the northwest portion of Harrison County, then selling the site to the company that would build and operate the landfill.

The latest negotiations come at a time when Waste Management announced this week it will no longer accept garbage from New Orleans.

Waste Management has applied to the Department of Environmental Quality for a permit to expand Pecan Grove by 215 acres, but the Harrison County Board of Supervisors is on record opposing the expansion.

Hancock Youth Court team in need of raises

BY ED LEPOMA

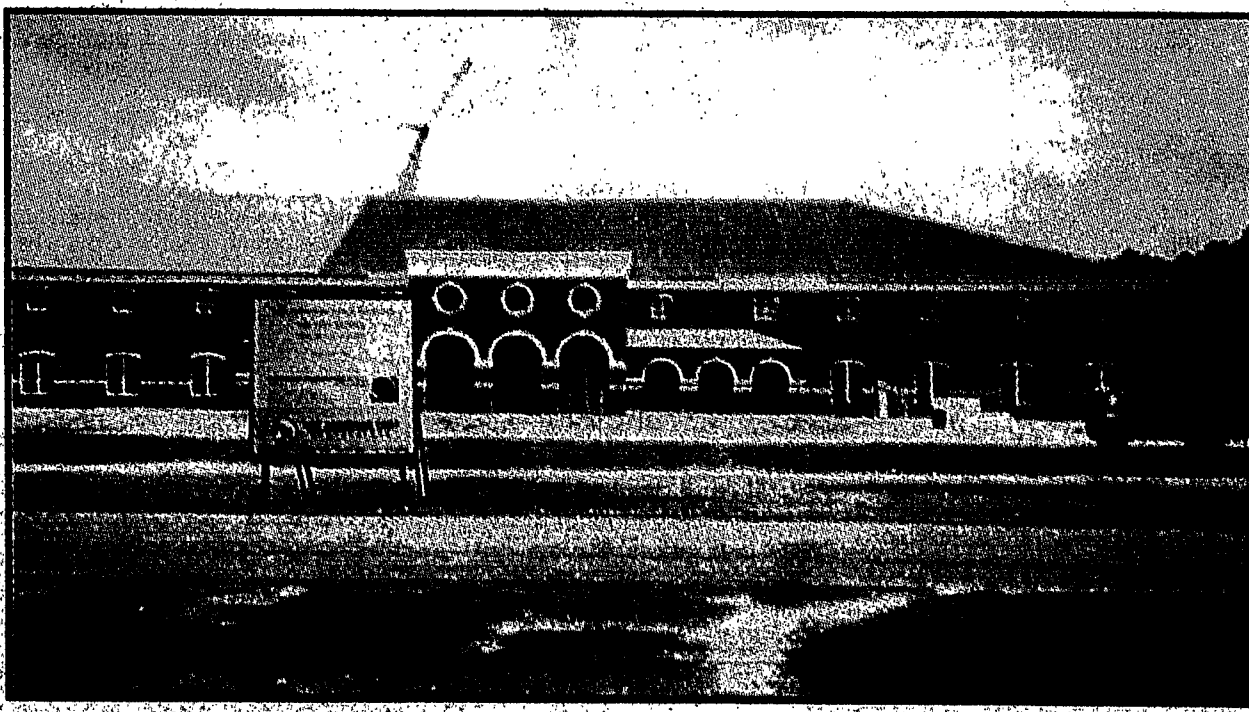

The senior judge of Mississippi's Eighth Chancery Court District has appealed to Hancock County Supervisors to increase the salaries of all personnel assigned to Hancock County's Youth Court.

Judge J.N. Randall Jr., who oversees activities in the Eight District composed of Harrison, Hancock and Stone counties, said he had also asked the last legislature for an additional $50,000 last session to run the youth courts, and the bill passed in the Senate, but died in the house. He said he would make another pitch in the January session, and would give $25,000 more to Hancock County's Youth Court, if additional funds were appropriated. "I can't over-emphasize the importance of Youth Court," Randall told Supervisors.

He explained that because of increasing case loads, court personnel are working more days and longer hours than ever, and the work load is also putting a strain on the budget for office supplies, which the county provides for Youth Court.

He is being honored for his humanitarianism as well as his ability to keep vital issues before the community.

Reared in humble beginnings, growing up in Bayou Augusta Housing Projects, then, later in Hansboro, Rip Daniels has risen from a DJ at the former radio station WTAM to owner of the former Club Cum Bi Ya, then, DJ at FOX 96, to real estate broker and now owner of the WJZD radio station.

Daniels has endless community involvement. He feels we should display pride in our communities, because it is the lack thereof that the crime element feeds. As the father of three, he is especially devoted to the educating and cultivating of young minds.

He has participated in all the mission education activities at Gulfside Assembly and throughout the Gulf Coast.

Daniels has put together a program that is the class act of Black radio. His morning talk show has awakened the minds of the Gulf Coast, stimulating responses from listeners of all ages. It is appropriately called, "It's A New Day."

PATH awards for

PATH Your Partner Against Tobacco awarded several Hancock County youths prizes of $1,600 for essays written about the "Dangers of Tobacco."

Throughout the spring semester, local students in public and private schools were asked to write frank and honest essays about their thoughts or beliefs about tobacco.

Winning essays were judged on their scientific content, but more on their personal and emotional content.

According to Pat Corell, PATH project director, entries from grades 4-6 were most impressive because the stories the children wrote were about how tobacco had "made their neighbors, or their grandparents and other loved ones sick or how tobacco had killed them."

Kids at this age are very concrete in their thinking. They actually understand more at this age than they will in 4-5 years from now.

PATH and The Partnership for a Healthy Mississippi are committed to providing the children and youths of Mississippi with factual information about tobacco use and its eventual and lethal effects.

The essay contests are a part of a multifaceted tobacco prevention program working across the Coast to reach children before they start using tobacco.

"Our work is not directed at punishing adults for their habits. It is about teaching our children and youths that tobacco contains an addictive drug, nicotine. And addictions are preventable.

According to recent U.S. studies, tobacco is now the number 2 gateway substance that can lead to illegal drug use.

Gorell continues, "Once it is acceptable in our community for our children and youths to put burning cigarettes in their mouths, it quickly becomes acceptable for youths and children to put other dangerous substances in their mouths like marijuana."

The awards were given out at various awards ceremonies in local schools throughout the month of May. When school begins in August, PATH will again sponsor an art contest asking local students to create posters about tobacco-free living.

Special award for essay on smokeless tobacco went to Brain White, Bay High ninth grade, $100 for "Chew on This."

First prize winners who won $100 in the essay contest included Arielle Bell, Bay Middle School, fourth grade; Elizabeth Spiers, Bay High, 7th grade; Geneva Mitchell, Bay High, 8th grade; Miguel Graves, Bay High, 9th grade; Kathryn McDonald, St. Clare, 3rd grade; Meaghan Besancor, St. Clare, 4th grade; James Wahl, St. Clare, 6th grade; Erin Stechman, Our Lady Academy; and Eddie Dedeaux, Waveland Elementary, 3rd grade.

Waveland participating in Millennium project

BY BENNIE WEDGWOOD
The Waveland Board of Aldermen, in a recess meeting Wednesday night, discussed the Millennium Time Capsule. Waveland and Bay St. Louis are two of five coastal towns chosen to contribute their written histories, souvenirs, keepsake, memorabilia and photographs to the project.

On Wednesday, June 30,

WLOX-TV will broadcast live from the steps of the Waveland City Hall and will speak with Mayor Tommy Longo and discuss some of the items that have been contributed.

Longo said he would like to see more residents participating in this important project for the future, and urges everyone in the county who is interested to bring their contributions to City Hall before June 30.

Other business discussed was the passing of a city ordinance which would prohibit the sale, use and possession of tobacco products to and by minors. Such an ordinance must be adopted by cities across the state in order that each city can qualify for further grants from the State Attorney General's Office.

Such grants are used to educate minors about the dangers of tobacco, drug use and alcohol, but also to sponsor events for young people and to purchase educational tools for schools.

Also discussed was next week's Mississippi Beach Kings Soccer Camp. The camp will be held in two sessions from June 21-25.

An early session is scheduled from 8:30 a.m. until noon for younger children, and a later session from 5 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. for older children.

Sessions will take place at the Coleman Avenue Field. All interested parties should contact Garry or Ben Powers at 228/341-2267 or just show up on Monday morning when the camp begins. Insurance is provided.

A highlight of the Wednesday meeting was the arrival of Waveland's 12-member Fire Department in full-dress uniform.

Fire Chief David Garcia, Asst. Chief Steve Garber, Captain Mike Smith and the other firemen presented themselves to the mayor and aldermen, which is a yearly tradition.

The men were congratulated and thanked for their hard work, and sincere efforts throughout the year, which has earned the city of Waveland a level five fire rating for fire safety.

Only 20 other cities in the state have this rating, which makes for a decrease in insurance rates for citizens.

No fall freshmen class at USMGC

BY ED LEPOMA
There won't be a freshman class this fall at the University of Southern Mississippi on the Gulf Coast.

That hope died Thursday when the state College Board postponed admitting freshmen at the Long Beach campus because $500,000 to hire faculty and screen candidates was not available.

Pam Meyer-Smith, a spokesman for the College Board said the state Legislature has promised to provide funding when it meets in January, which would allow a spring freshman class.

Another problem compounding the situation is inaction by U.S. District Court Judge Neal

Biggers.

In March he blocked the expansion until the College Board changed special admission requirements, but the Board later met and made requirements identical to admission requirements at other Mississippi universities.

Biggers, whose court is in Oxford, has still not signed off on the admission policy.

Meyer-Smith said in addition to the $500,000, at budget hearings in September, the College Board would also seek $2 million. The funding would be used for a university center at USM, Gulf Coast, but would also allow USM to admit more than 75 freshmen initially.

Lung Association gives away patches

Quitting smoking just got a little easier and cheaper, courtesy of the American Lung Association of Mississippi (ALAM).

They are providing a limited number of free Nicotrol Nicotine Transdermal Patch kits to people over 18 who want to quit smoking.

The Nicotrol kit is a stop smoking aid that includes an audiotape, instructions, tips for quitting, and a six-week supply of patches. The patch reduces nicotine withdrawal symptoms associated with quitting.

According to the US Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, nicotine replacement is one of the most effective therapies for quitting.

Nicotine replacement may come in the form of a patch, chewing gum, an inhaler or a nasal spray.

The patch slowly delivers a steady dose of nicotine through the skin during waking hours and is removed before bedtime.

ALAM provides guidelines for patch use, and urges anyone who has heart disease, is pregnant or nursing a baby, or is taking prescription medications to consult with their physician before ordering the patches.

"You must quit smoking before you begin using the patch," said Elizabeth Barber, ALAM executive director. "And you should not use Nicotrol if you chew, dip or are using other nicotine replacement products like nicotine gum."

ALAM received the patches from the Partnership for a Healthy Mississippi, a statewide organization devoted to reducing tobacco use among Mississippians. They are making them available to any Mississippian over the age of 18 who requests them.

For a free six-week supply of Nicotrol patches and a starter kit, call ALAM at 1-800-737-5453.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Thursday, Friday and Saturday marked the 133rd Annual Mississippi Press Association's Convention which was held at the Grand Bayview Hotel in Biloxi.

The convention is a time when newspaper folks from across the state get together to renew old acquaintance and make new ones.

I can recall the first convention I attended was in 1958, held in Biloxi at the old Broadwater Hotel. Since I have been in the business, I would say over 90 percent of the Press Association's summer conventions have been held in Biloxi.

Those of us who live on the Coast really do not know how many others would like to change places with us.

I guess really one of the highlights of this year's convention was the keynote speaker, Mills Lane. For some who may not realize who he is, among other things he is the boxing referee who handled the Tyson/Holyfield biting affair.

Lane has many talents. He is a judge, author, TV personality, attorney, prosecutor, district attorney, etc. To say the least, his talk was very interesting.

Like just about every convention this year, the theme was, "Are you ready ... 2000?"

I do not know about you, I realize that it is very important, but in talking to many folks, they sort of feel the same way I do, and that is we are getting tired of hearing Y2K.

The Y2K problems may be a lot different than expected, and hopefully everyone will be ready for the turn of the century.

Since our grandfathers did not have all the advanced technology at the turn of 1900s as we have today, they did not have the potential problems we have.

Back on the convention, it was good to meet with some of my longtime newspaper associates.

Since this is an election year, we did have many of the state candidates at the association's "Campaign '99: Town Meeting with the Candidates," on Saturday morning.

Randy (Ponder) and I will be looking forward to next year's summer convention, and yes, it will be held once again in Biloxi.

This is a reminder to everyone about the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Second Annual Business & Industry Expo set for Thursday, August 26, 3 to 7 p.m. at the Hancock County Civic Center.

As you may recall, the event was held last year at the Waveland Holiday Inn. The Holiday Inn, a terrific setting, was outgrown before the start of last year's Expo.

The number of participants had to be limited because of space, and there was a waiting list. Being such a success last year, the event will be at the Civic Center, which has a lot more room, but will be limited in the number of booths it can accommodate.

Booth space is available on a first-come, first-served basis to Hancock Chamber members only.

If you have not selected your booth space as yet, you may want to do so soon, as the spaces are being selected fast.

I spoke to Janelle at the chamber on Thursday, and she reports they already have some 40 who have selected a booth.

The booth fee is $75 for a six-foot rectangular table and $125 for a eight-foot table.

This is a good opportunity for business and industry to display their products.

I am looking forward to the Business & Industry Expo in August.

Defense bill passes U.S. House

U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor, a senior member of the Armed Services Committee, announced Friday that the Fiscal Year 2000 Defense Authorization passed the U.S. House of Representatives by a vote of 365-58.

Taylor said the bill not only provides $288.8 billion which is vital to our national security, but also has funding for a number of projects which are important to Hancock County and south Mississippi.

Taylor said the bill passed by the House includes $9.6 million for the Navy Special Forces Small Boat Unit at Stennis Space Center.

The funds will be used to build a small craft instruction and technical training school. The facility will include funds for student berthing, a dining facility, classrooms, labs, offices and a supply warehouse.

Another project that will affect Stennis is $5 million which was authorized for Master Crane. Master Crane is an aircraft component hosting system which is used by the Air National Guard on both fixed and rotary wing aircraft. The manufacturer of this system is based at Stennis Space Center.

Other funding in the defense authorization which could have an impact for the Stennis Space Center is $123.8 million for research and development of the Space Based Laser Missile Platform.

Two of the contractors bidding on the program have expressed an interest in locating at the Stennis Space Center if they are awarded the contracts.

In another issue that is important to all military personnel, the bill includes a provision raising military pay by 4.8 percent Jan. 1, 2000. Also, the defense authorization added $19 million to improve the U.S. military health care system.

Taylor listed these other South Mississippi projects which are funded in the defense authorization bill.

- $15 million for advanced procurement for long lead materials for construction of LHD-8. This amphibious assault ship of the Navy is built by Ingalls Shipbuilding.

- $2.68 billion for the procurement of three DDG-51 Aegis Destroyers which are built by Ingalls and Bath Iron Works in Maine.

- $270.4 million research and development funding for DD21, the Navy's next generation surface combatant. Ingalls will build at least half of the ships of this new vessel class.

- $55 million which will go to Ingalls for a cruiser conversion program and engineering study. This limited program, because of its success, will now be expanded to include all CG-47 Ticonderoga Class Aegis Cruisers.

- $12.6 million to construct new barracks for enlisted personnel at the Seabee Base in Gulfport. Phase I of this project was funded in the FY 99 defense bill.

Taylor said the bill will save taxpayers $6 million in repair costs. In addition, $6.31 million was in the bill to convert four floors of the existing Bachelor Enlisted Quarters from open-bay to two-person suites for advanced school students at the Seabee Base.

- $7.1 million for the construction of a 1,500 person Student Dining Facility and $19.9 million for a new Student Dormitory Complex at Keesler Air Force Base.

- $14.8 million for the G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery Tank Training Complex at Camp Shelby. This will provide money for the third and final phase to complete a multi-purpose tank range complex for the Mississippi Army National Guard.

- $62 million for the National Guard's Youth Challenge Program, of which Camp Shelby is a major part.

This program, which has been a great success, is designed for unemployed high school dropouts. Taylor said that instead of these 16-18-year-olds winding up in the criminal courts, almost all the young people who complete the program either get a job, go to school or join the military.

- In another important National Guard matter, the defense authorization provides $26 million above the administration's budget for 765 active Army National Guard (AGR) personnel.

Additionally, it provides $91.5 million to fully fund and increase the number of dual status military technicians by 800. The National Guard is currently experiencing AGR and military technician manpower shortfalls.

- $3 million for Smart Product Propulsor Model (SPPM) which is for work done by the Bird-Johnson Company in Pascagoula.

Taylor also included in the defense bill a provision to make Dropsonde System Operators (DSO) eligible for flight duty pay.

Although deserving, Hurricane Hunter enlisted air crew members were not eligible for this pay under current law.

The DSOs fly aboard the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron's Hurricane Hunters which are stationed at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi.

Picayune resident says there's an alternative to garbage disposal

Dear the Editor:

Hancock County does have a choice for an alternative to a landfill!

It is unfortunate and unfair this was not brought out at the Aug. 7 Board of Supervisors and Hancock County Solid Waste Authority meetings.

Statements made after the meetings that a landfill that is owned by the county would cost millions of dollars is misleading.

A landfill in our county, whether it be a private one that would take out-of-state garbage or county-owned is simply not necessary.

There are landfills in adjacent counties that are easily accessible for our garbage disposal. A rubbish disposal site exists north of Kiln.

Long-term and competitive offers have been made to our Solid Waste Authority by Waste Management to continue to take our garbage.

It is misleading that this alternative was not discussed at the meetings. It is a viable disposal method and will prevent our county from becoming a dumping ground for out-of-state garbage.

Place our trust fund into a trust!

Dear Editor:

Social Security is a pay-as-you-go program funded by taxpayers to pay benefits to people receiving benefits. The defect in the structure of Social Security requires that the ratio of taxpayers to people receiving benefits remain large to prevent the program from failing.

All this hoopla about saving Social Security is the result of the retirement bulge that will start forming in 2008 when the first of the boomers become 62.

The good thing about the boomer bulge is that they are in the prime of their careers when their income is highest allowing a buildup of money in the Trust Fund to create the current $650 billion surplus.

Unfortunately, many believe that the Trust Fund which is the intended recipient of the taxes is believed to be as impregnable as Fort Knox. Not so.

Since the founding of Social Security during the Great Depression, politicians have used Trust Fund surpluses to fund pork-barrel projects to gain reelection.

This occurs because Congress co-mingles the Trust Fund contributions with income and other taxes in formulating the federal budget.

For example, the 1998 budget surplus existed only because Congress included the 1998 Social Security surplus when the actual budget showed a deficit.

In order to prevent these Congressional shenanigans from occurring over and over again it is mandatory that the Trust Fund be removed from control of the politicians and be made into an autonomous agency like the Federal Reserve having a charter to collect, invest and distribute the trust money in a prudent manner.

Allow me to propose that the new agency be called the United States Social Security Trust.

Sincerely,
Robert A. Dahlquist

It is common sense to utilize existing landfill

Dear Editor,

The current landfill issue over a private landfill (a private landfill will take out-of-state garbage) in Hancock seems to be one of a more political nature than one of economics. The stakes are very high.

An offer was made to the Hancock County Solid Waste Authority for a long-term contract to continue to take our garbage that would not cost any more than our current contract.

It is common sense to utilize an existing landfill than to allow another landfill to be built that would take out-of-state garbage.

It is also more economically feasible to use a landfill that is only 30 miles away than to put in a county-owned landfill.

This is a political and economical decision of the county, and the stakes are high if a private landfill developer is allowed in our county to take out-of-state garbage.

Bicycle magic, storyteller highlight reading program

Bicycle Magic and storyteller Gigi Hines will highlight this week's programs for the Hancock County Library System's 1999 Summer Reading Program.

The bicycle program will be Wednesday, June 23 at 10:30 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis Depot, and Gigi Hines will perform her storytelling magic at the Pearlton Library Friday, June 25 at 10 a.m.

Mississippi Magic is the theme for this year's summer reading program, open to children and young adults, pre-school age through eighth grade. Programs and activities will continue through Friday, July 9.

Children who normally attend programs at the Waveland Library on Tuesdays and the Kiln Library on Thursdays are reminded that the Wednesday program at the Bay St. Louis Depot replaces those programs this week only.

The bicycle magic program, will feature all sorts of activities about bicycles.

Sgt. Jim Martin with the Bay St. Louis Police Department will show children films on bicycle safety, explaining the correct way to ride a bicycle, bicycle lighting and maintenance.

McGruff the Crime Dog will also visit the Depot with prizes to give away.

Gene Schloegel with Bay St. Louis VFW Post will be on hand to assist in entering bicycles, gathering owner information and providing special tags for bicycles. According to Sgt. Don Oco of the Bay St. Louis Police Department Crime Prevention division, children need to bring their bicycles to the Depot for registration and marking. Then, if the bicycle is stolen and recovered by the police, it can be identified and returned to the owner.

Children who view the safety films and register their bicycle will have an opportunity to maneuver their bicycle in and out of 12 cones, designed to test balancing and other riding abilities.

Zaro, the Bay St. Louis Police Department's canine officer, assisted by Sgt. Paul Cox, will be on hand to demonstrate drug detection, suspect take-down and attack.

The DARE Train, courtesy of the Gulfport Police Department, will be available for children to ride around the depot, along with information about drug awareness.

Susan Daigre, Bookends Bookstore, assists in coordinating events for the Summer Reading Program.

Gigi Hines, music teacher for the Hancock County School District, will present a storytelling and musical program at the Pearlton Library Friday at 10 a.m. her combination of playing the guitar and telling stories captivates children across the county.

Each registrant will receive a reading record, book bag and pencil with which to record books read, and those who complete the program will receive a certificate.

Awards and certificates for the reading program will be presented the week of July 6. Certificates of completion may also be used as free passes to the George Ohr Museum and the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center.

A library card is required to check out all books, which may be checked out at any of the library system's four branches. To enter, children should go to the library branch nearest them, and then visit a branch at least four times during the program and check out at least six books between June 1 and July 2.

To validate each visit, each reading record must be stamped. Merit stamps will be awarded for every five books read beyond the basic goal of six books.

For formation, call David Woodburn or Adrienne Bradley, Bay St. Louis Library, 467-5282; Evelyn Necaise, Waveland Library, 467-9240; Sandra Ladner, Kiln Library, 255-1724; or Caprice Smith, Pearlton Library, 533-0755.

Munger is pre-teen finalist

Miriah C. Munger, daughter of John Jr. and Kimberly Luxich of Bay St. Louis, has been selected as a finalist in the 1999 Pre-Teen Mississippi Scholarship and Recognition Program to be held Aug. 6-8 at the Ramanda Coliseum in Jackson.

Pre-Teen Mississippi is a by-invitation only scholarship and recognition event involving young ladies 7 to 12 years of age based on their school academic records, awards and honors won and/or their participation in outside activities.

Additionally, young ladies are invited who have been recognized publicly for their outstanding personal achievements, volunteer services, school involvement, leadership abilities or creative talents.

Pre-Teen Mississippi will award over $5,000 in educational bonds, prizes and awards.

Book traces rise of Catholic Church in Mississippi

The Roman Catholic Church in the early 20th century Mississippi was a religious minority of fewer than 30,000 struggling in a hostile social environment. Today, with well over 100,000 members, it is integral thread in the state's social fabric, contributing to education, health care and outreach programs for the underprivileged.

Although a slow and often painful one, the story of the Catholic Church's growth in Mississippi is a tale in which common denominators prove more powerful than any perceived differences.

Dr. Michael Namorato, a University of Mississippi professor of history, has detailed much of that story in his recent book, The Catholic Church in Mississippi, 1911-1984, published by Greenwood Press of Westport, Conn.

"The Catholic Church was a minority, and it was not an embraced minority by any means. There were many instances of outright prejudice and some cases of violence," Namorato said.

Examples abound, some more menacing than others. When the Catholic Church purchased the Jackson Infirmary in 1946 and turned it into St. Dominic's Hospital, the Ku Klux Klan set a large cross afire across the street from the site in Jackson. The threatening symbol of the times did not prevail.

In a small town in the northern part of the state in 1968, a neighbor welcomed a newcomer to town with friendly greetings and six bottles of Coca-Cola, only to return and retrieve her gift when she learned the newcomer was Catholic. Thirty years later, the newcomer is a respected friend and neighbor who wouldn't live anywhere else.

Of course, Catholics are still minority in the state, but vestiges of discrimination and persecution have evaporated with time and understanding, Namorato said.

In the book, the Ole Miss professor considers the Catholic Church's history and assimilation into statewide society from various viewpoints. On ground level among the laity, the Catholic Church grew steadily in numbers.

On the institutional level, the churches influence on education and health care became more profound and recognized for its benefits to the state in general. But invariably, Namorato returns to his central point that the story is best portrayed by the everyday lives of Catholics whose faith sustained them while they gained acceptance in a region generally suspicious of Roman Catholicism.

"I was most struck by the people's faith and how they sustained it," said Namorato. "The (Catholic) Church in Mississippi has always been much more than an institution to attend just on Sunday. It's always been considered more a family by its members."

That is not to say the Catholic Church did not have its own internal conflicts. In the 1940s, one church's parishioners broke the key off in the lock in a futile attempt to prevent an African-American wedding. Another parishioner shunned a black priest who was assigned to fill in for the regular pastor.

Organized in Mississippi in 1837 when Pope Gregory XVI established the Diocese of Natchez, the Catholic Church has traditionally been missionary in nature, especially until Joseph B. Brunini in 1966 became the first native-born Mississippi (Vicksburg) to lead the church in the state as bishop.

But the growth of the Catholic Church in the state has relied on priests and religious orders coming from elsewhere to serve here, oftentimes in difficult situations. Between 1911 and 1984, more than 1,000 priests ministered in Mississippi, along with religious brothers and sisters representing nearly 100 different orders within the Catholic Church. Irish priests had a particularly powerful impact.

"For a long time, the conditions Catholic religious lived under were awful," Namorato said. "Often priests didn't have enough to eat and, in some cases, the sisters who taught in the schools had to sleep in the classrooms. They certainly didn't have a convent. But their commitment to the faith was so strong, and they are the unsung heroes."

Namorato evaluates three bishops who served as the top prelate in the state within the scope of his study: John E. Gunn, 1911-24; Richard O. Gerow, 1924-66; and Brunini, 1966-84. Each possessed a strong personality, and each left a unique legacy in the history of the Catholic Church. What they had in common was a strong spiritual commitment and a daunting array of ever-present problems, including lack of finances and personnel.

Gunn became known as the chapel-builder. When he became the sixth bishop of the Diocese of Natchez in 1911, the Catholic population in Mississippi of 27,355 was served by 46 priests in 33 churches. When Gunn died in 1924, 60 priests were serving in 149 churches.

Gerow was a meticulous record-keeper, during the more than 40 years of his episcopacy, devising a comprehensive index system for diocesan archives that provided a rich resource for Namorato. Also under Gerow, the diocese moved its central home from Natchez to Jackson, where operations became more centralized, activities expanded and the diocese began publishing its own newspaper.

Propelled by the powerful combination of the Vatican II Council in Rome—which promulgated dramatic changes within the Catholic Church—and the Civil Rights Movement at home, Brunini embraced the challenges presented by both. He was the first chairman of the Mississippi Religious Leadership Conference, whose outspoken voice helped eliminate segregation.

Namorato worked on his book for 10 years, reviewing a vast amount of information in three categories: official archives of the diocese as well as of individual religious orders serving in the state, correspondence and personal interviews.

He also traveled extensively—logging more than 30,000 miles—visiting every parish in the state and the headquarters scattered across the country of many of the religious orders that sent sisters and brothers to work in Mississippi between 1911 and 1984.

Fire Dogs team up with Bay Youth League for annual football/cheerleading clinic

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The annual Bay St. Louis Youth Football and Cheerleader clinic is just days away. There is still time to register for both the football and cheerleading clinic.

Each year the camp provides excellent instruction in fundamentals and technique skills for the young football player.

The Bay High coaching staff, along with current and former college and professional football players, provide the instruction for the campers. The Mississippi Fire Dogs and John Fourcade, the indoor professional football team on the Coast, will be on hand to assist with the camp.

Fourcade is a former Ole Miss quarterback who earned

All-SEC honors before departing onto a professional career that had stints in the NFL, CFL, USFL, and Arena teams before becoming the quarterback/coach/general manager of the Fire Dogs.

The Fire Dogs boast a roster full of former college all-stars and some with other professional experience.

For the cheerleaders, the clinic teaches basic cheering fundamentals and arrangements. This year the Mississippi Fire Dog dance team will be on hand to assist the young cheerleaders in their development.

The clinic will be held at Joe D. McCullough Stadium on Athletic Drive in Bay St. Louis on June 23-25. The clinic will be conducted 8-8pm daily.

For anyone interested in registering for the clinic, please call Ree Elliott at 467-3904.

Beach Kings to sponsor soccer camp in Waveland

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The Mississippi Beach Kings will sponsor a summer soccer camp in Waveland from June 21 thru June 24 and in Picayune July 19 thru June 22.

The Beach Kings reached the finals of the Eastern Indoor Soccer League championship last season. The league ceased operations in December; however, the Beach Kings wanted to stay active in the community that supported them.

The Waveland camp will be held at the Coleman Avenue soccer fields and Picayune's camp will be held at Friendship Park.

The camps will focus on technical, tactical, and game instruction for the young soccer player. Gary Hindley, the 1998 Eastern Indoor Soccer League Coach of the Year, and Ben Powers, a seven-year veteran of professional soccer and the Beach Kings captain, will be on hand to supervise and conduct the clinics.

There will be other Beach Kings players on staff depending on their availability. The other players are Stuart Dobson, Brian Cushing, Larry Inlow, Hemont Sharma, Colin Steenkamp, Darren Snyder, and Curtis Stelzer.

The camp will be divided into two sessions. The morning session will start at 9am and continue until 11:30am. This morning session will be geared toward players who are 5-8 years old.

The afternoon session will start at 5:30pm and finish at 8pm. This evening session will be geared toward 9-14 year olds. The cost per camper is $75. For more information please call the Beach Kings office at 341-CAMP.

Focus is vital for fitness

By Gary Spencer Smith
"Don't just do it, do it right" is the motto of Jim Benn, one of the prominent fitness trainers in Austin, Texas.

He is referring to the fact that successful fitness programs require careful planning and focused execution. When glancing across most commercial fitness facilities, it becomes obvious that the majority of clients are "going through the motions" of exercise with little or no mental focus.

Unfortunately, many are also using inadequate or inappropriate training routines. The effort and time spent working out should yield consistent results.

Fitness programs can generally be modified to improve the rate of progress toward goal achievement.

Mental focus comes into play in both program design and concentration during each exercise.

The following checklist may be used to improve the productivity of a fitness program:

- Training schedule — The program should be compatible with career and family activities, allowing sufficient time for regular and complete workouts.

- Exercise Program — The training routine must be easy to follow, with a basic understanding of the purpose of each exercise. The number of different exercises should be as few as necessary to achieve goal. The order of exercises is also important to enhance muscular action.

- Exercise techniques — Exercises should be done using proper form with smooth, deliberate motions.

- Exercise effort — Light to moderate work levels with focused concentration produce consistent results.

- Recovery — Adequate time must be allowed for muscle and connective tissue to rebuild. This varies with individuals, requiring 48-72 hours between workouts on the same muscle groups. Advanced strength training for athletics can require longer time periods for rebuilding.

- Diet — Balanced meals and nutritional snacks should consist of unprocessed foods, avoiding animal fat, hydroge-nated oils, and simple carbohydrates.

Although fitness training is predominantly a physical activity, success greatly depends on mental focus.

A carefully designed program, along with concentrated effort in every repetition of each exercise, is the effective way to achieve fitness goals.

Gary Spencer Smith is a personal trainer at Pathways Personal Training in Waveland, (228) 467-2727.

'Smart' polymers may increase oil production

University of Southern Mississippi scientists are developing a new polymer they hope will squeeze more oil out of the Earth and result in fewer gas crises for future generations.

Professors Charles L. McCormick and Roger D. Hester have been awarded a three-year $1.056 million grant by the U.S. Department of Energy. In return, they were asked to create a fluid that can help petroleum producers pump a greater percentage of oil from reservoirs below the Earth's surface.

"We currently depend on non-domestic sources, such as the Middle East, for over half of our nation's petroleum for fuel and petroleum-based products," said McCormick, explaining that conventional U.S. oil recovery processes historically tap only about 20 percent of the petroleum in oil-bearing reservoir rock.

"This situation is unacceptable for our future economy and national security," the polymer chemist asserted. "With the right polymer technologies, we speculate we could get 75 to 80 percent out of the ground."

The secret to such a boost in recovery efficiency will be equipping environmentally stimulated polymers, or complex molecules, to work together in a water-based fluid "to seek out holes where oil is trapped," Hester said.

Such a polymer turns the fluid into a honey-like substance capable of pushing oil out of porous underground rocks, he said, adding, "The polymers we're using have to be benign or environmentally acceptable."

Both scientists know this kind of "smart polymer" is possible; their research groups have collaborated on several projects involving "smart" fluids in recent years and they've taught short courses to petroleum scientists in Brazil, Venezuela and France. They've also worked together to create and patent polymers with other properties for Exxon, Mobil, Sun Oil and Marathon.

McCormick said the technology he and Hester have developed attracted U.S. Department of Energy interest because of a world economy that now has the U.S. turning more to foreign oil sources.

"With escalating violence in the Middle East and the demands for environmental stewardship, we must explore new technologies for domestic production of fuel and petroleum for other uses," said McCormick, a Greenville native who, along with Hester, serves on the faculty of USM's internationally recognized School of Polymers and High Performance Materials.

The scientists are actively involving graduate and undergraduate students in the research project. Specifically, students in McCormick's research group are tailoring "smart" polymers through chemical synthesis and biotransformation.

Hester's engineering group studies the fluid flow properties and polymer interactions within porous material resembling oil reservoir rock. His group has developed models to test the efficiency of recovering oil, including situations that involve high temperature and high salinity.

Hester said he's pleased with the educational opportunities that arise from research with such a high national priority. "The most important aspect of our academic mission is teaching students the latest technology," he said. "I believe that the success of our interdisciplinary approach is reflected by the industrial demand for our students and the national ranking of our academic program in polymer science."

Bob R. Harris, Jr., project manager for the DOE's National Petroleum Technology Office in Tulsa, Okla., said the Southern Miss research project could eventually make it economically viable to revive abandoned oil fields.

"There is probably as much oil left in the ground as has been produced to date in the U.S.," he said.

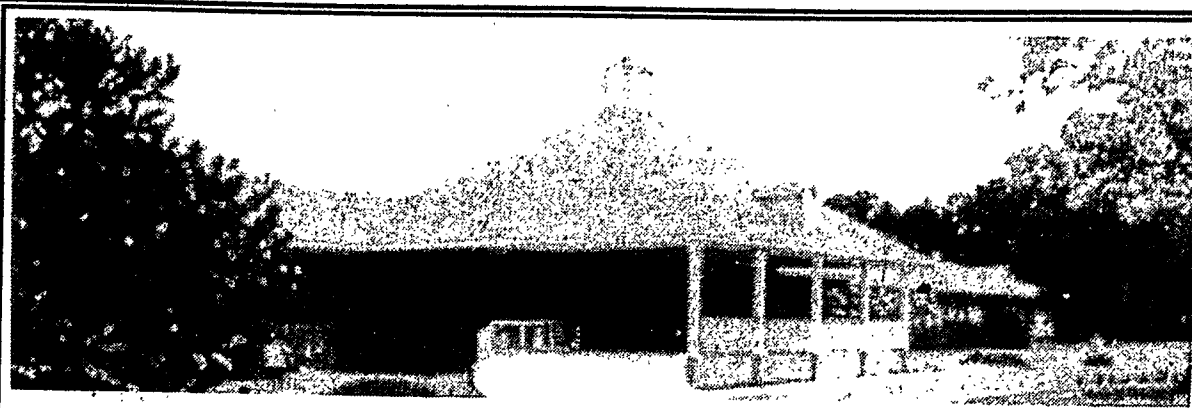

McCormick and Hester got the nod for their project despite a crowded field of competitors for a limited pool of DOE money.

Vice President for Research Don Cotten said he believes the grant is the largest USM has received from DOE and "recognizes the quality of science practiced here."

The importance of the substance (McCormick and Hester) are developing is obvious," Cotten said. "They are recognized nationally and internationally for their work in polymer-enhanced oil recovery. The type of work that they're engaged in has tremendous potential economic impact."

St. Stanislaus named six Students of the Month for May, according to Brother Ronald Hingle, SC, principal. The Student of the Month is a recognition program to highlight those students in each grade level who are indeed "Men of Character."

Students are chosen by the school faculty and administration on the basis of sincerity, respect, courtesy, cooperation, effort, service, moral character and achievement.

Students of the Month include senior Kevin Messer, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D.

Messer of Baton Rouge; junior Gary Maitland, son of Mr. and Mrs. M.E. Maitland of Middlesex, England; sophomore Nick Benvenuti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Benvenuti of Bay St. Louis; and freshman Ryan Veach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Veach of Diamondhead.

Also named were eighth grader Scott Hillanbrand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hillanbrand of Gulfport; and seventh grader Michael Enloe, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Enloe of Diamondhead.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Submitted by Craig Foster
Edward Jones Co.

Long-term success involves short-term setbacks

Have you ever looked at someone and thought his or her life must be a bed of roses? Remember, appearances can be deceiving.

The stock market has looked pretty rosy in recent years. The Dow Jones Industrial Average has increased more than 2,500 percent in the past 25 years. This amounts to an average of about 14 percent per year. If you had put $10,000 into a portfolio mirroring the Dow, it would have grown to more than $269,000 in that time.

Those results, however, were not achieved without some thorny periods. A study of those 300 months by one mutual fund company found that such an investment would have lost money in 112 months, or three out of every eight. Monthly losses of 5 percent or more over the 25-year period were not uncommon. Some declines were dramatic, such as the 23.2 percent drop in October 1987.

Yet the bottom line is a 2,500 percent increase. The lesson is that over the long term, the stock market is a good place to be.

Still, would it be possible to take advantage of short-term movements to make a quick profit? The study found no obvious patterns over the 25 years. Significant monthly movements, both up and down, came without warning. Sometimes, there was a succession of good or bad months. Other times, the market moved quickly up and down and back again. Significant monthly declines came in good years, and significant monthly gains occurred in poor years.

To illustrate the value of staying in the market (and the folly of trying to "time" the market), the study compared a hypothetical investor with terrific timing to one with dreadful timing. If you'd had the nerve to invest in the Dow on Oct. 19, 1987—the day of the big 508-point drop—your money would have grown to seven times its original value by July 31, 1998. If your timing was terrible, and you'd invested the day before the drop, your money still would have grown to nearly five-and-a-half times what you'd put in.

Over the long run, the stock market's upward movement has been strong and clear. Investors who simply bought and held equities for at least 10 years have generally done well.

People who appear successful and content didn't get there without setbacks. Into each life some rain must fall—and that applies to the stock market, too. But those who remember that every rainstorm eventually ends are more likely to enjoy the silver lining behind the clouds.

Retail electricity competition study results released

A study on retail choice for electricity in Mississippi shows the state has relatively inexpensive electricity, below the Southeastern average, a region that has low prices relative to the rest of the country.

The comprehensive study also exposed various problems likely to occur if Mississippi implements retail competition. Electric power associations officials were on hand to discuss the study which was commissioned by South Mississippi Electric Power Association.

According to Hobson Waits, executive vice president of Electric Power Associations of Mississippi, the study addresses many areas of concern if Mississippi moves to restructure the electric industry.

"The high-price states are likely to benefit from a move to retail competition," said Waits. "In low-price states, such as Mississippi, consumers are likely to be better served by maintaining the present regulatory system as long as prices remain lower than in surrounding states."

The study maintains that retail competition will cause more interstate trade of electricity. Those who developed the study reported that retail competition in the electric industry will lead to more interstate trade and higher prices in low-price states as they increase exports.

"Basically, the low-price electricity Mississippi has will be old to states suffering from high electric rates," said Robert J. Occhi, executive vice-president and general manager, Coast Electric Power Association.

"There will be winners and losers with retail competition. In Mississippi the losers will be residential and small commercial customers."

Waits noted the study warns that state and local tax receipts are likely to be affected by restructuring the electric industry.

"Retail competition could bring momentous changes to the economic climate of the state, the state tax structure and the ability for all consumers to benefit from electricity restructuring," he said. The study reports at least seven counties in Mississippi receive more than 5% of their revenue from electric firms. At a minimum, a substantial revision of the property tax system will be necessary to ensure competitive neutrality in a restructured environment.

Other areas addressed in the study are reliability, economic development and environmental regulations.

High-price states and the federal government should not be allowed to prematurely force Mississippi or any other low-price state into retail competition, the study reports. Mississippi would be wise to avoid the largely unmapped waters of retail competition.

the development that illustrates the existing and proposed conditions, including lot lines, streets, building sites, open spaces, major landscape features, walkways, means of traffic ingress and egress, utility services, landscaping, structures and signs, lighting, screening devices, parking and any other information that reasonably may be required in order that an informed decision can be made by the Hancock County Planning Commission.

Five copies of the application for site plan approval must be filed with the county Zoning Enforcement Officer, and the application must list the names and addresses of the applicants, and other planners, engineers, architects, surveyors or other professionals engaged in preparing the application.

The names of all owners of record of all adjacent properties also need to be included on a certified survey of the property.

A map indicating the applicant's entire property and adjacent properties and streets must be attached to the application, along with the dimensions of all existing and proposed structures and the location of all existing structures on adjacent properties and within 400 feet of the site boundary. All existing and proposed paved areas must be shown.

Site development data must include means of vehicular access and egress, location, elevations and sections of proposed structures and roads. It also must show the location and layout of off-street parking and loading areas; proposed water lines, valves and hydrants; sewer lines; and direction and timing of outdoor lighting.

The location, size, color and illumination of proposed signs must be indicated, along with location of existing and proposed site improvements, including drains, culverts, retaining walls and fences, and outdoor storage areas that might include fencing and screening.

The Hancock County Planning Commission may refer the application to other federal, state, county or local agencies if it feels a more thorough review of the application is necessary.

The Planning Commission is also required to hold a public hearing on the site plan, and within 60 days must act to either approve, reject, or attach conditional requirements to the application in order to approve the site plan.

If the site plan is disapproved, the Planning Commission must include written finding listing the reasons for the disapproval.

Site plan approval will be void if construction is not initiated within one year and substantially completed within three years of the date of filing of the approved site plan, but the ordinance gives the Planning Commission the option to grant extensions.

The Planning Commission may also require the developers to guarantee completion of improvements through a performance bond, letters of credit, or other sufficient security.

Copies of the amendments to the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance are available at the Hancock County Enforcement and Zoning Office, 151 Main Street, directly across from the County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis.

Raises

Randall came armed with letters from Youth Court Judge Robin G. Gibson and other court personnel attesting to the increasing case load.

"You will note from these letters that because of recent federal and state legislation and an increase in case load at the Hancock County Youth Court, the court personnel are now working substantially increased hours since the salaries were established several years ago.

In order to maintain good qualified personnel and a dedicated staff, I am requesting that their salaries be increased not commensurate with their increased case load (which would be three times their present salaries) but to an amount which would in a small way compensate them for their loyalty, dedication and increased service," Randall said in his letter to supervisors.

Randall recommended that supervisors provide for the increased salaries in the next fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

He wants to raise Gibson's present salary of $25,000 a year to $35,000 a year.

Other recommended raises include:

- Court Administrator Kay Kihnermann from $15,000 to $20,000 a year;
 - Court Reporter Sharon Jordyn from $14,560 a year to $18,000 a year;
 - Part-time Secretary Lisa Tilley from $5.15 per hour to $6.50 per hour;
 - State Rep. J.P. Compretta, Youth Court Public Defender and Guardian Ad Litem, from $25,540 to $32,000 per year;
 - John Genin, Youth Court Prosecutor, from $15,600 to $22,500 per year.
- Supervisors took Randall's recommendations under advisement.

advertising campaign through national RV clubs, tourism bureaus, KOA and Chambers of Commerce to lure more RVs to the city. And he said he would provide space in his offices to spotlight local businesses such as restaurants and shops.

With an initial park of 30 slots, Hatchett said he hopes to expand to up to 75 slots in the future.

Building Official William Carree had raised concerns in a letter last month over wetlands on the property, the lack of water and sewer facilities and the proximity of a radio tower on the tract to the proposed RV parking slots. Carree also had raised a question about size of the parking slots, originally proposed at 12 feet by 20 feet.

Hatchett said he's contracted with consultants to get necessary local, state and federal permits, and has applied for a nationwide wetlands mitigation designation because the development impacts less than three acres.

He also said he has an easement to Blue Meadow Road for water and sewage connections, and is committed to follow the city and federal flood zone regulations.

The proposed park is over 200 feet from any point of the 192-foot radio tower, he said. The tower is designed to collapse downward to within 100 feet of its base.

Hatchett redesigned his site plan, to make each RV site 16 feet by 40 feet, accommodating a the largest RV and a vehicle, he said.

Meanwhile, Ernest W. Drackett Jr. has applied for a special exception to transform 720 Dunbar Avenue into commercial and business offices.

The commercial half of the structure would accommodate a "full service salon," with hair styling and massage therapy services available. The other half of the building would house a professional office, such as an accountant or attorney's office; the applicant states.

The property is zoned R-3. Drackett said his proposed venture would be in conformity with the mixed of business and residential uses in the neighborhood.

A third application on the P&Z agenda seeks the subdivision of two additional lots not addressed in the original subdivision plot by Robert W. Breeden Jr. The parcel of property at issue is zoned by R-4 and R-1, in the St. Margaret Estates phase of the subdivision.

Carree has raised questions concerning the front footage of the proposed lots, and the accessibility to the parcel.

The Hurricane Hunters, who fly out of Keesler aboard the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, were not eligible for flight duty pay under current

AD VALOREM ADVERTISEMENT

The Hancock County School District will hold a public hearing on its proposed school district budget for fiscal year 1999-2000 on June 28, 1999 at 5:30 p.m. at the office of the Superintendent. At this meeting a proposed Ad valorem tax effort increase shall be considered.

The Hancock County School District is now operating with projected total budget revenue of $20,183,942.62. 34.35% or $6,933,751 of such revenue is obtained through ad valorem taxes. For the next fiscal year, the proposed budget has total projected revenue of $23,189,734.26. Of that amount, 33.08% or $7,672,175, is proposed to be financed through a total ad valorem tax levy.

For the next fiscal year, the Hancock County School District plans to decrease Ad valorem tax millage rate by .11 mills from 52 mills to 51.89 mills.

This decrease in ad valorem tax revenue means that you will pay less in Hancock County School District ad valorem taxes on your home, automobile tag, utilities, business fixtures and equipment and rental real property.

Any citizen of the Hancock County School District is invited to attend this public hearing on the proposed ad valorem tax increase, and will be allowed to speak for a reasonable amount of time and offer tangible evidence before any vote is taken.

Picayune Scout Troop wins national award

A Mississippi Boy Scout troop has won a national award in the 26th annual search for the country's best community projects by young Americans.

Members of Picayune Law Enforcement Explorer Post 353 involve at-risk children in low income areas and public housing in a variety of outdoor activities, and their efforts have won high honors in the 1999 "Colgate Youth for America" campaign.

The announcement was made in New York by TV and screen stars Rebecca Gayheart, Ashton Kutcher, Monica Keena and Omar Epps, celebrity members of this year's judging panel for the program which encourages community responsibility in young people.

"Positive Profiles" is a program of continual visitation with at-risk children. Scouts involve them in sports and games, as well as day trips such as fishing and canoeing.

Troop leader Ron Addington said, "Personal positive contact fosters good will toward police officers. The police department attributes a 22 percent decrease in juvenile arrests to the program's success."

For their efforts, Picayune Law Enforcement Explorer Post 353 was voted a $300 third prize in the 26th anniversary Colgate Youth for America Campaign.

To date, Colgate-Palmolive Company has awarded more than $5.5 million to America's young people through "Youth for America." The program has been honored by The White House under five different administrations, has received a Freedoms Foundation Award and is praised each year by members of Congress and countless governors and mayors throughout the nation.

Entry forms for the 1999-00 27th annual "Youth for America" campaign will be available this fall through local offices of the six national youth organizations or by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to Colgate

Youth for America at P.O. Box 1058, FDR Station, New York, NY 10150-1058.

At the Colgate-Palmolive web site, www.colgate.com, you can click on "In the Community" for further details, view a complete list of winners and print an entry form for next year's competition.

Jane Amos knew that she had to lose a lot of weight to find herself again. But more than that, to save her life. Like so many, she tried countless diets and medications. Their failure led to her depression and her fear of heart attack and stroke. Then Jane discovered the "Live Light" Surgical Weight Loss Program at Gulf Coast Medical Center. As part of the Weight Management Center, "Live Light" has helped Jane live a more active life. And if you ask us, it's a lifestyle that fits her quite nicely.

This testimonial reflects the results achieved by this patient. As each case is different and must be independently evaluated and managed, weight loss will vary.

St. Stanislaus hosts contractor Gibbens

Mike Gibbens, general contractor in Hancock County, recently visited St. Stanislaus to speak to select geometry classes about putting theoretical mathematics into practical use.

Gibbens' visit was timed to correspond to an end-of-the-year project in which the students were designing their own house and floor plans for Mike Gemelli, math teacher.

Putting special influence on designing houses, Gibbens spoke about the intricacies of drafting, overlays and buying lots.

He explained about the choices homeowners must make and helping homeowners work through these choices. He emphasized the realities of changes and adjustments from floor plans to hinges.

As he demonstrated ways to read house plans and blueprints, Gibbens said, "You'll be able to see and make changes to develop the house the owner wants."

Audubon Zoo tops national lists

Audubon Zoo of New Orleans is the No. 1 family-friendly zoo in the Southeast and one of the best zoos in the country, according to two national magazines published recently and a national cable television program.

FamilyFun Magazine named Audubon Zoo the No. 1 family-friendly zoo in the Southeast in its June-July issue after polling 250 readers throughout the region.

According to FamilyFun Travel Editor Deb Geigis Berry, "FamilyFun readers have high standards when it comes to places they travel with their kids, so if they consider a spot a '10,' parents can rest assured it's a great destination." FamilyFun magazine is published by Disney Publishing Worldwide.

Travel and Leisure Family magazine, in its Spring Summer 1999 issue, listed Audubon Zoo of New Orleans as one of the top 10 zoos in America. The listing highlighted the new Louisiana Swamp at the Audubon Zoo, where visitors sample spicy Cajun food as zookeepers feed the alligators in view of the public nearby.

Audubon Zoo was also recently applauded by the Travel Channel as one of the top zoos in the country in a feature which aired May 19 on the program "Travel Daily."

For information on Audubon Zoo or any of the Audubon Institute facilities, including the Aquarium of the Americas, the Entergy IMAX Theatre, the Louisiana Nature Center, the Freeport McMoran Audubon Species Survival Center, the Cruisin' the Coast gearing up for big event

Organizers for the fourth annual Cruisin' the Coast are expecting between 2,500 and 3,000 classic vehicles from over 30 states for this year's Oct. 7-10 affair.

The event simultaneously features five 'mini' car and music festivals up and down the Mississippi Gulf Coast in the cities of Biloxi, Gulfport, Bay St. Louis, D'Iberville and Long Beach.

Classic car participants participate in cruise-ins for the opportunity to win $15,000 in cash drawings at Gulfport on Sunday the 10th. They also have the opportunity to visit the sponsoring area casinos and take part in a 'Poker Run' for the chance at another $4,000 in cash.

For the speed demons, there will be drag racing at the Gulfport Dragway Friday the 8th.

Each day brings non-stop big name entertainment on the "Cruisin'" stages; at night, each casino provides the same, as well as 24-hour gaming.

The event drew a mere 384 cars in its inaugural year of 1996 - then 997 in 1997 and 1,854 last year (one week after Hurricane Georges).

The economic impact of CTC last year was $3.6 million. On this date last year, 530 vehicles were preregistered - this year 1,280 are already signed up.

The oldest car pre-registered thus far is a 1909 Ford Model T, owned by a gentleman from Moristell, Mo.

Cruisin' the Coast is a non-profit event. Its proceeds benefit a number of Coast charities. CTC is sponsored in part by the Mississippi Casino Operators Association, Harrison and Hancock County Tourism, State of Mississippi Tourism and Coca-Cola.

For auto registration, call 1-888-808-1188. For other event information, call Gene Oswalt, executive director, at 228-385-3847.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Echoes of Cana

Shamefaced, totally embarrassed, the newlyweds were at a loss as to their next move. Enter a tall, handsome stranger who ordered the steward to load up with water the biggest jars they had. Lo and behold, suddenly they had quality wine.

This chapter 2 of John's gospel has reverberated back and forth through the ages, often in completely different sets of circumstances. "They have no wine!" is the crisis call varied thousands of times each day around the entire world.

"We can't pay our rent!" is heard frequently every day in every large town of all states. Trouble is, once your average church or other institution has helped one or the other person, the coffers have been drained almost to the very bottom.

"Do you have money for utilities?" merely adds to the overall strain on everyone's resources. All the while, those who might help are trying to sift out people who "buy what they want and beg for what they need."

In any case, we have to be aware of the many who constantly search for freebies, and who are willing to tell lies or half-truths to get them. For them, the philosophy is "Do whatever you must to get over, to receive your 'freelody'."

So we know, "We have no wine," can be a very relative thing, often a monster created by our greed or carelessness. On the other hand, as in Cana, it is sometimes the result of oversight or the crush of guests coming into a function.

"I'm out of gas!" Robby Gordon had put himself into that corner in the 1999 Indianapolis 500, gambling that his leading, gas-thirsty racer would make it across the finish line on fumes. We can often blame ourselves for the fix we're in.

Sometimes we gamble, as

Gordon did, but then we have to take the consequences, win or lose. All of us know well that in some things we can afford to take risks, while there are circumstances where conservative is the order of the day.

With a few obvious exceptions in life-and-death situations where we have to take chances at times, risky behavior and maneuvers are to be avoided with regard to our safety and overall well-being at home, on the road and wherever.

"They have no wine!" still echoes around the world, as hapless, oft hopeless humans search for a Messiah to lead them to the Promised Land. Ironically, two millennia after the Messiah came, the Promised Land seems even farther away.

"Not only do we have no wine," people like the Albanian Kosovars might say, "but we have no bread, no food of any kind, no beverages, and, most of all, no life security. Our life is not worth the earth we walk on."

"They have no wine," is the generic for things such as "My life is morally bankrupt," "My social life is bankrupt," "I don't have one decent relationship in my life," "I have nothing in life which is not controlled by an addiction."

The wedding reception at Cana teaches us, among other things, that all of us humans have enough deficiencies and lack of awareness that we should be motivated to look out for each other and to share our resources whenever feasible.

We believers should be the last to allow ourselves to be split into other camps of the "Haves" and the "Have-nots," except, again, where people are have-nots by devious choice or by the total neglect of their God-given resources.

The "WORD" for the Week

Dennis J. Prutow, Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

Why war?

"What is the source of quarrels and conflicts among you?" (James 4:1). There are many answers. The Bible gives the best one. James 4:1 continues, "Is not the source of your pleasures that wage war in your members?" In Vietnam, I recall a soldier murdering one of his own comrades. He lost a poker game. As the Bible says, "You lust and do not have; so you commit murder" (James 4:2).

This sad commentary is expanded to welfare within schools and also to the international level. Greed, self-centeredness, and lust for power and thrills drive men and women to the brink. They must have more and more. Tyrants push people. They mercilessly demand their way. When they do not get it, they get out their guns and ships and bombs and planes. It is not much different than this fellow who used a hand-grenade on his comrade. The principle is the same. It's just on a bigger scale.

What's the answer? The answer is changing people on the inside. Only God can do this. Without a radical change of heart, war in Europe or on the school ground will not come to an end. While these wars persist, we must persist in prayer. We must ask God to change human hearts. We must plead with God to remove the lust for power that begins such wars.

ETV features secretary of state candidates

On Thursday, June 24 at 7:30 p.m., Statewide Live will feature both candidates who are running for Secretary of State: Eric Clark (D) and Nick Walters (R).

ETV has partnered with the League of women voters of Mississippi. Together they invited the 33 candidates who are running for the seven contested statewide races to appear on Statewide Live in the coming weeks.

Program excerpts may be heard the following week on PRM's Morning Edition. PRM Producer/Announcer, Ms.

Shannon Murray, says the candidate features are worthwhile additions to PRM's daily statewide newscasts. "Helping our statewide audience learn more about candidate views on major issues, is an important part of our daily in-depth news service."

Mr. John Johnson, host of Statewide Live will ask questions of the candidates regarding their background, their reasons for running, and their views on some of the major issues. Screened, issue-oriented viewer questions will also be asked.

Two to serve as summer missionaries

Robynn Shubert and Kristie Pearce are two of 144 Mississippi university and college students appointed by the state Baptist Student Union to serve as summer missionaries in the Philippines.

Shubert, daughter of Felix and Judy Martinez of Poplarville and Bobby Shubert of Bay St. Louis, is a student at Pearl River Community College.

Pearce, daughter of Woody and Belinda Pearce of Waveland, is a student at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The Mississippi Baptist Student Union raises its finances entirely by donations from students involved in 34 BSU programs across the state. This year's budget is $144,134.

All students serve approximately a 10-week term alongside career missionaries.

This important commission given to fathers by our Lord, can at times be very demanding, but it can also be extremely rewarding. It is important to realize that being human, fathers, at times, may fall short of what is expected of them. How fathers handle their failures can be an example to their children of how they should respond when faced with similar situations. The Peace Corps uses the slogan, "The toughest job you'll ever love." This could also be a good motto for those who have accepted the responsibility of being a good father. However, unlike the Peace Corps, fathers have a lifetime commitment. The influence that fathers have on their children is unique. Children are a direct reflection of their parents, and the examples that parents set in the home will help determine how their children will behave in the future. Fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord. Kemp's Ridleys on increase

As another nesting season nears completion, Texas A&M University researcher David Owens said the Kemp's Ridley, the most endangered of all sea turtles, is showing signs of recovery along the Texas coast.

The recent discovery of three nests has brought the total number found in South Texas to 14 this year — the most found ever.

The population of Kemp's

Ridley turtles has risen dramatically from only 350 female turtles in 1985 to more than 1,000 today, most nesting in Mexico. Owens has been studying the behavior and reproductive characteristics of the Kemp's Ridley and other turtles that nest on the Texas coast.

Kemp's Ridley feed on crabs and other animals that live in the same waters as shrimp. The turtles can drown if they get caught in shrimp boat nets, but the use of nets with trap doors that allow the turtles to escape have helped the population rebound, Owens said.

"Shrimpers are using these trap doors and it's saving lots of turtles, no doubt about it," Owens said.

Owens said his goal is for the turtles to have a population of 10,000 females by 2020, which would allow them to be considered "threatened" instead of "endangered."

Owens also contributed to a resolution sent to Gov. George W. Bush encouraging the development of a new protected area for turtles off Padre Island National Seashore.
